Happy Fathers Day!

On this day, we celebrate Father's but also in honoring guys, living up to the name of being a Christian man. We try to be strong and macho, but often it's just a front. For all our effort, sometimes we realize we don't measure up. Underneath it all we harbor a host of fears, insecurities and shortcomings. The end goal of the Christian life is to become the man or women that God wants us to be. One way we can lead men to this is through discipline. A discipline, or in our case "spiritual discipline," is a training activity that helps to shape and mold character over a period of time. Here are 5 disciplines that I will share with you, I'm sure there are more;

Prayer: Prayer is a fundamental discipline, and men need to learn to build prayer routines into the daily patterns of their lives. The primary problem I see is the Daily demands that compete for our time. Because of this, men go days, weeks, and even months without prayer, trusting only in human effort rather than also trusting in God through prayer. This can leave men feeling physically exhausted and spiritually depleted. Since so many other things compete with this priority, we need to be reminded of its priority and encourage men to strive to make time.

Scripture: People want the truth, and I believe they're on a search for it. As Christians, God's Word is the revelation of the truth, and Jesus is the physical representation of truth. Men must be challenged to read the Bible, but they also must be taught how to read it, study it, and pray it. And it's the primary way we hear from God, what is God telling me through this passage?

Brotherhood: Men need relationships with other men. Most men prefer to go life alone for several reasons—time is valuable, relationships take work, chemistry is challenging, and autonomy is easier. But the biggest reasons I believe men don't establish spiritual connections with other men is that they have never experienced one before. They don't know how to do it, so they press the easy button. Spiritual growth doesn't happen in isolation; it occurs in a community, and men need other men.

Accountability: Spiritual accountability is perhaps one of the most misunderstood practices in male spiritual relationships. First, it needs to be proactive and positive, not exclusively reactive and negative. Spiritual accountability should be focused on the things I should start doing and continue doing. Second, men need to invite self-imposed accountability. Too often we think someone else needs to hold us accountable, we need to hold ourselves to a higher standard of living. Third, accountability needs to be spiritually-focused. We have to remember we are becoming the men God wants us to be, and we are doing it for his glory, not our own.

Personal Ministry: Some men need to be pushed to take this step. Since men prefer to disqualify themselves for lack of knowledge and because of personal sin. Teach, lead and join! They need another man to say, "Get off the bench and into the game."

INSPIRATION FOR THE WEEK

Good dietitians will remind us that we are not only the product of what we eat but the disciplines we undertake. Many people spend a great deal of time and effort eating a healthy diet, getting a sufficient amount of rest, and engaging in regular exercise. Experts tell us that attending to these increases our chances for a longer life. While this is certainly a worthy pursuit, is our earthly life really the one that requires the most attention and effort? Faith kicks in to remind us that we are meant to live forever with God. Hence, isn't it our eternal destiny that requires most of our effort and attention?

The food and nourishment we need to achieve this goal and fine tune our souls for this promised inheritance are the Body and Blood of Christ. Only this heavenly sustenance will unite us with God and our brothers and sisters, strengthen us to do what the Gospel asks us to do and prepare us for life eternal.

Through the discipline of prayer, our desire to receive our Lord is deepened. It is this yearning, above anything else, that we want clearly seen and front and center when we close our eyes in death. God loves us so much that he gave us his only begotten Son. Let us rush to receive him!
