Let God write your story

An effective trial lawyer knows that on cross-examination, you should rarely ask a witness a question to which you do not know the answer. Asking such a question is inviting the witness to tell you—and the judge and jury—something you don't already know. You might get an answer that surprises you and is contrary to the narrative you have developed for your case.

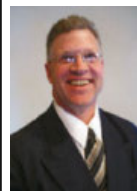

Although asking a witness a question to which you do not know the answer is generally unwise for a trial lawyer, the opposite is true for us. We can ask questions of our loving Heavenly Father, and the witness who answers our questions is the Holy Spirit, who always testifies to the truth.

Why do we put off asking a question to which we do not know the answer when the witness not only is friendly but will always tell the truth?

Perhaps it is because we don't have the faith to accept the answer we might receive. Perhaps it is because we resist turning things completely over to the Lord and trusting Him entirely. We don't want to ask a question and get an answer that doesn't fit neatly into the story we are writing for ourselves.

Frankly, few of us would probably write into our stories the trials that refine us. But don't we love a story we read when the main character overcomes the struggle? Trials are the elements of the plot that make our favorite stories compelling, timeless, faith promoting, and worthy of telling, for example David and Goliath, and the story of Esther. Let the adversity and affliction that is part of every good story be a means by which you draw closer to, and become more like, Jesus Christ.

GOD MAY NOT ALWAYS ANSWER THE PRAYERS WE WANT,
BUT HE ALWAYS ANSWERS THE PRAYERS WE NEED.

Let your narrative be one of faith, hope and love
following in the footsteps of our Savior, Jesus Christ.

Deacon Mike

FALL BIBLE STUDY, LIFE IN CHRIST

Towards the end of his life, under arrest and awaiting trial in Rome, Saint Paul writes a short but powerful letter to the Philippians. With his words and the example of his life, Paul exhorts the Philippians to have the mind of Christ, to live a life worthy of the Gospel, and, by God's grace, to gain Christ. As we journey through Paul's letter to the Philippians, we will learn the key to Christian friendship and how Paul is able to rejoice in the midst of suffering. We will discover what it means to share in the citizenship of Heaven and glory with St. Paul as his eloquent hymn reveals the mind of Christ and much more.
