Lack of Spiritual Growth

Do you ever get discouraged by your apparent lack of spiritual growth? Don't feel like the lone ranger! It happens to all of us. Spiritual growth is a deliberate time set aside to slow down in the busyness of your life to look back on your day, month or year in an attempt to learn from your experiences, desires, and feelings. In life, it's very easy to become driven by your schedule and commitments.

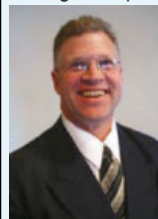

Sometimes we are too busy trying to stay on top of everything to have any time to sit back and reflect on what you are doing or how you are feeling. Or maybe you don't feel driven by your schedule but prefer to spend your downtime using your mental energy to something like TV or video games.

Both busyness and mind-numbing activities are ways to avoid self-reflection. Self-reflection runs against the grain of a busy culture. It requires us to set specific time aside to be quiet, still, and alone. From this quiet place, you can begin to prayerfully enter the presence of God and begin processing what has been going on in your life.

You can ask questions like, "Am I satisfied with what I'm doing?" Sometimes life gets so busy that you can forget why you even got so busy, to begin with. Or you can ask God "Is my life organized in such a way to make my relationship with you a priority?"

Spiritual growth is a life long journey of prayerfully learning to be in the presence of God and to become more and more like him. Take an honest inventory of your life to see where you need to seek a change through the power of the Spirit. It may not come naturally to all of us living in the modern world, but it is a spiritual practice that can powerfully deepen your relationship with God.

Deacon Mike
