

Stars, Animals and Children

What does the Hubble telescope, a zoo and children have in common? They all point to God's magnificent creation. The idea that God created our universe is often questioned, so I was thinking that this would be a good time for a reminder to give praise to our heavenly Father for His awesome handiwork.

The Hubble telescope can help us with its eye popping pictures of the universe. Every one of those photos points to stars that focus attention on God's creative majesty. A visit to the zoo points us to the great diversity of wildlife God created. We say thank you for the sea creatures, wild animals, insects and birds. And a few minutes of watching children laugh, sing, play and of course the giggle, symbolizes the joy we should have in living life in honor of our Creator.

Stars, animals and children praise the name of the Lord! May we join in saying thanks today for the creation our heavenly Father has so generously given us!!!

Together through prayer and service
